

Scene 1
[00:00-00:44]

A "NEW THIS MORNING" segment shows an ice anchor desk in Indianapolis. Night aerial of Tulsa. The anchor introduces meteorologists George Flickinger and Taft Price in the studio.

Scene 2
[00:45-01:39]

Live shot of Jenks bus lot covered in snow. "What We're Tracking" graphic lists dry Tuesday and potential snow in Dallas-Fort Worth on Wednesday. Today's hourly weather over a daytime driving view.

Scene 3
[01:40-03:09]

Meteorologist explains radar/satellite over Oklahoma and the Western U.S., current temperatures (mostly low 20s), Midtown conditions from River Spirit Casino, and the Future Track of an incoming storm south of Oklahoma.

Scene 4
[03:10-04:06]

Today's forecast for Tulsa (high 44°F, clearing skies) and tonight's forecast (low 22°F). A 7-day forecast shows sunshine early, a 50% chance of rain on Sunday, and fluctuating temperatures through the week.

Video Overview

This video is a winter weather news segment for Oklahoma. It begins with severe cold reports from Indianapolis and Tulsa, then shows current snow impacts and school bus lot conditions. Meteorologists analyze radar and temperature data, followed by detailed forecasts for today, tonight, and the coming seven days.